Edgewater Fullscope recognized as

Finalist for 2017 Microsoft Industry Partner of the Year

Athens, AL — June 1, 2017 — Edgewater Fullscope today announced it has been named a finalist in the 2017 Microsoft Industry Partner of the Year Award. The company was honored among a global field of top Microsoft partners for demonstrating excellence in innovation and implementation of customer solutions based on Microsoft technology.

"Microsoft Dynamics products continue to provide manufacturers with a business platform for success, and we take pride in being a top Microsoft partner for delivering these powerful solutions," said Russell Smith, senior vice president of Fullscope. "We are honored that Microsoft has recognized us six times as either the winner or a finalist for the Industry award as it validates the consistent value we provide to our customers."

Awards were presented in several categories, with winners chosen from a set of more than 2,800 entrants from 115 countries worldwide. Edgewater Fullscope was recognized for providing outstanding solutions and services in Industry Partner of the Year.

The Partner of the Year annual awards celebrate top Microsoft partners that are demonstrating excellence in innovation and implementation of customer solutions based on Microsoft technology. Award winners and finalists, chosen out of nominations from around the world, will be recognized at the 2017 Microsoft Worldwide Partner Conference taking place July 9-13, 2017, in Washington, D.C.
